I cant say for certain but our headquarters knows that permit is high priority so hoping they either decline review or review fairly quickly, once I get the go ahead from our RA. As soon as I brief her and she approves I will be submitting for review.

Shawn,

The only other option would be to apply for an individual permit which takes 6 months. I am preparing to brief our Regional Administrator on the permit in the next two weeks. Hoping that things go smooth after that, I can keep you updated as much as I can on perceived issuance date.

Nicole,
Thanks for the clarity, one more thing to add/ask.

Our process includes receiving water from a subsea pipeline, introducing the contaminated water through a carbon media, performing a static sheen test then taking the sample for lab testing. There isn't an offshore platform for reference for existing coverage. Are there any variances available for this process?

That statement is correct. Administrative continuance under 40 CFR §122.6 is limited to permittees and coverages that were already covered by the permit prior to expiration. New operators may not submit NOI's during the administrative continued period, because the coverage was not existing prior to expiration.

Sharon/Nicole,

I certainly don't want to question your knowledge in this concern but below is an excerpt(highlighted below) from the EPA website stating(from what interpret) is that we are covered until the new permit is issued. My apologies to bother with so much clarity but this type of work for us is extremely important to our business and its employees.

So, as I read the excerpt again before sending the email, I believe this statement covers a company where they have "existing coverage", we are asking for "new coverage" in different parts of the Gulf of Mexico. Would you agree? If so, is there anything that can be done as not to impede the projects we have coming up, possible variances?

Please note that if the permit expires before reissuance, the permit will automatically go into administrative continuance for all permittees with existing coverage as provided by the administrative procedures act.

Thank you for your time and effort.

Just to clarify....

I am aware your company is an existing operator under our GMG290000 permit.

It is not the "new operator" status I replied to below.

It is gaining new coverage while the permit is expired that I addressed below.

And, EPA is working towards going paperless so if you can send the "aka paper NOI " to me via email, that would be preferable. Again, it only goes into our records; I cannot process it for coverage.

Todd,

- 1) Any discharging to the Gulf of Mexico without NPDES coverage is in violation of the Clean Water Act.
- 2) If you do any activity without NPDES coverage, the discharge will have to be collected and barged to shore for on-shore disposal. You cannot discharge anything to the Gulf of Mexico. And, by my saying barge to shore is not NPDES coverage under the GMG290000 general permit.

3) You can file a paper NOI to show "attempt to gain coverage" (and why), when coverage is not available at this time. But, that paper NOI does not give you coverage.

Feel free to reach out to Nichole Young, our permit writer, for the status of when the permit is anticipated to be reissued.

Or, you can visit the Enforcement Branch's offshore web site at the following link, then read the red box in the upper right corner for the status. But, Nichole would have a better response as her information is more up-to-date.

Quick question to make sure we are in compliance for upcoming projects we have:

- If we need to conduct a discharge at a new location before the new permit is out, what do we do in regards to permitting?
- o I was under the impression we had to have an eNOI or NOI prior to discharging in the GoM.

The 2022 permit has not been issued yet; that is why you cannot do any eNOIs right now.

You can go to our offshore web site at the following link to check from time to time on the status of the reissuance of the 2022 permit. When you click on the link below, go to the upper right corner, yellow box marked News, and it will give the current status.

I am following up on our previous email conversations regarding adding new eNOI's towards our permit. I am still receiving the same administrative continued status. You had mentioned that I would receive an auto email regarding instructions on how to setup for 2022. I have not received any emails. Can you explain to me how this works? I am unable to file eNOI's and need to continue doing so, as far as I am aware. I have called the helpdesk and have been told to speak with you directly. Any information or guidance will help, thank you.

EPA may make all the information submitted through this form (including all attachments) available to the public without further notice to you. Do not use this online form to submit personal information (e.g., non-business cell phone number or non-business email address), confidential business information (CBI), or if you intend to assert a CBI claim on any of the submitted information. Pursuant to 40 CFR 2.209(a), EPA is providing you with notice that all CBI claims must be asserted at the time of submission. EPA cannot accommodate a late CBI claim to cover previously submitted information because efforts to protect the information is not administratively practicable since it may already be disclosed to the public. Although we do not foresee a need for person to assert a claim of CBI based on the types of information requested in this form, if person wish to assert a CBI claim we direct submitters to contact the NPDES eReporting Help Desk (NPDESereporting@epa.gov) for further guidance.

Furthermore, CWA section 309(b) and 40 CFR 122.7 require EPA to make effluent data available to the public. EPA's CWA CBI regulation defines "effluent data" as, "A general description of the location and/or nature of the source to the extent necessary to identify the source and to distinguish it from other sources..." See 40 CFR 2.302(a)(2)(C). Thus, effluent data will not be protected as CBI and will be made publicly available.

During Administratively Continued Status (where your coverage that was gained under the 2017 OCS General Permit carried forward into October), there is no action at this time.

When action will be required:

Once the 2022 permit has been issued, operators will be sent an auto-generated email with instructions on how to re-apply for their 2017 coverage under the 2022 permit.

The Administratively Continued Status expires 60 days after the 2022 permit is issued (the exact date of the deadline will be stated in the auto-generated email sent to each offshore operator). Any coverage not re-applied for will expire at that time.

EPA cannot assume what coverage gained under 2017 will be needed under 2022. Therefore, operators must re-apply for that coverage under the 2022 permit. The actions required to reapply will not only keep the coverage you held under the 2017 permit, but will also retain the same assigned permitted feature. The Limit Sets may/may not change depending on what is selected during the re-application process.

Repeating myself here...any coverage not re-applied for by the deadline will be automatically terminated by EPA.

Are you trying to file an eNOI? Subject: NPDES Account Trouble

Sharon,

My name is Shane Stires and I work for Legends PPS. I'm having trouble with my NPDES account and was advised to contact you to get the problems resolved. If you can please give me a call at (337)322-7842 at your earliest convenience that would be appreciated.

Thanks,

Shane Stires | Operations Coordinator
